The sad thing is that today New Zealand men face similar choices and we still don't have clear best practice guidelines for prostate cancer testing or for the management of metastatic disease.